B2 Speaking

Describing and comparing photos

Talk for a minute about a picture: say what you see, speculate about it, and compare two photos.

Many speaking exams ask you to talk about photos for about a minute. Examiners want more than a list of objects: they want you to organise your description, guess what is happening, and compare.

Step	Useful language
Give the general picture	This photo shows a family having a meal outdoors.
Describe position	In the foreground... In the background... On the left...
Speculate	They might be celebrating something. It looks as if it's a holiday. She seems to be...
Give your view	Personally, I'd prefer... because...

Speculate with modals. You don't know the real story, so use might, could, must and it looks like / as if. They must be tired; they've clearly been walking all day.

Common mistakes. In the photo I can see a man, a table, a dog... is a list, not a description. And remember: It looks like a party (+ noun). Before a clause, It looks as if they're having a party is the safer choice in exams; It looks like they're having a party is common but informal.

Practice

1. Start a description of a photo of students in a library.
2. Speculate: A man is running to a bus stop with his bag open.

3. Make it more formal: It looks like they are very happy.
4. Compare: Photo A shows a busy city street; Photo B shows a quiet village.
5. Give your view with a reason: Which place would you prefer to live in?

▼ Show answers

1. This photo shows a group of students studying together in a library.
2. He might be late for work. / He must be in a hurry; it looks as if he's about to miss the bus.
3. It looks as if they are very happy. (or: They look very happy.)
4. Whereas Photo A shows a busy city street, Photo B shows a quiet village. Both are places where people live, but the pace of life seems very different.
5. For example: Personally, I'd prefer the village because it's calmer and closer to nature.
