C2 Listening

Hearing the speaker's attitude

Work out what a speaker really thinks from hedges, contrasts and loaded words in spoken English.

In C2 listening tasks the answer is rarely stated directly. Speakers soften criticism, praise with reservations and change direction mid-sentence. The words around the opinion tell you more than the opinion itself.

Signal	Example	What it usually means
Concession then contrast	It's beautifully shot, but…	The real view comes after but.
Hedging	I'm not entirely convinced…	Polite disagreement.
Faint praise	It's perfectly competent.	Disappointed.
Loaded words	a bloated script, a daring choice	Strong negative or positive judgement.

So, the new film. Look, it's beautifully shot, there's no denying that, and the lead actor does what he can with the material. But I'm not entirely convinced the director knew what story she wanted to tell. The first hour is gripping; the second is, shall we say, rather more relaxed. And the ending, which I won't spoil, is a daring choice that I suspect will divide audiences. Would I recommend it? For the photography alone, possibly. Just don't expect to remember much of the plot on the way home.

> Count the buts. Mark each but, though and just don't. The sentence after the last one is often the speaker's final view.

Common mistake. Choosing the answer that repeats the speaker's words. Beautifully shot is said, but the overall opinion is mixed to negative.

Practice

1. What does the speaker praise without reservation?
2. What does does what he can with the material suggest about the script?
3. What does rather more relaxed really mean?
4. How does the speaker expect audiences to react to the ending?
5. Overall, the speaker's view is: (a) enthusiastic (b) mixed, leaning negative (c) completely negative
